Alaska Fishing

John is a registered Alaskan guide, long-time fly fisher, and owner of Against the Flow Adventures. Against The Flow Adventures specializes in taking a limited number of clients on fly fishing float trips on some of the not-so-famous-rivers in Alaska in an effort to provide a total wilderness experience. In this presentation John will discuss floating and fishing the Kaktuli River, a small river in the Bristol Bay watershed and ground zero in the proposed Pebble Mine controversy. Topics will include the status of the proposed mine, species of fish available, timing of runs, tackle, flies, fishing methods, and dealing with such issues as bugs, bears, and inclement weather.
